This is a website developed for the convenience of patients/visitors, and medical practitioners. Some information may not be timely or relevant to your need, and the information only serves as a guidance. A formal consultation or discussion is still required with your general practitioner or specialist. This website is updated regularly.

Two subheadings of this website worth pointing out are:

Medical information

A section was created for thrombosis and related problems, and this contains the latest 2016 Chest guidelines on thrombosis management. There is another section on iron dietary advice that you may find useful.

Information on novel oral anti-coagulants, alternatives to warfarin, will be made available soon.

Additional links to:

Leukaemia Foundation, NSW Cancer Council, Australasian Society of Thrombosis and Haemostasis, Haemophilia Foundation Australia, Up-to-date, Blood Journal (American Society of Haematology), Australian Red Cross Blood Service, eviQ cancer treatment online, HSA NZ (Haematology Society of Australia and New Zealand).

About the practice: You would be able to find out more and make online appointments/enquiries. Patient registration and clinical information forms are also available for download.
